Program aims

The Undergraduate Certificate of Information Systems is an industry-oriented qualification focussing on assisting you to develop a broad range of skills to address both technical and business information systems issues. The certificate will provide you with an opportunity to gain an understanding of the broader architecture of information systems and the principles of computer programming and the principles of modern software engineering practice, while also developing an understanding of information system analysis and design in the business context. This certificate is ideal if you know you want a career in IT but do not want to narrow your focus too early.

Program objectives

Upon successful completion, students will be able to:

- (1) apply theoretical and technical knowledge in the area of Information Systems
- (2) apply problem-solving skills and use information technology for problem solving as an individual or within a team
- (3) communicate clearly and coherently to present relevant knowledge and ideas to a range of audiences
- (4) identify, collect, analyse and manage information for a broad range of information technology issues and challenges
- (5) demonstrate an understanding of ethical standards and socially responsible information technology practices.

Australian Qualifications Framework

The Australian Qualifications Framework (AQF) is a single national, comprehensive system of qualifications offered by higher education institutions (including universities), vocational education and training institutions and secondary schools. Each AQF qualification has a set of descriptors which define the type and complexity of knowledge, skills and application of knowledge and skills that a graduate who has been awarded that qualification has attained, and the typical volume of learning associated with that qualification type.

This program is at AQF Qualification Level 07. Graduates at this level will have broad and coherent knowledge and skills for professional work and/or further learning.

The full set of levels criteria and qualification type descriptors can be found by visiting www.aqf.edu.au.
